Private equity shapes Aramark, Reynolds & Reynolds, Aleris deals — MarketWatch

NEW YORK (MarketWatch) -- A recent flood of leveraged buyouts continued Tuesday as management-led groups and their backers, flush with record levels of cash from pension funds and other institutions, splashed out more than $10 billion on three deals.

'Firms have raised some very sizable funds and are able to go after companies they wouldn't have been able to go after in the past,' — David Barry, Private Equity Analyst

Another factor fueling the going-private trend is the ongoing difficulty of being a public company in the face of flat to lower equity prices, as well as regulatory challenges posed by new stock-options-accounting and Sarbanes-Oxley Act requirements.

Traditionally, the deals would likely result in restructuring plans and initial public offerings down the road for the firms, although staying private or selling to another company or private-equity firm are all possible scenarios.

The deals continue even as experts predict that rising interest rates and slowing growth in corporate profits could put a damper on any private or selling to another company or private-equity firm are all possible scenarios.

So far, a reported rival offer for HCA has yet to publicly materialize after reports of bids in the works from rival private-equity firms.

Though the biggest, the fund is not the only one its range. Permira, a London-based private-equity firm, raised $12.8 billion for a new fund on record, the $15.6 billion Blackstone Capital Partners V Fund.

But those funds are nearly double the biggest funds raised historically.

The industry is expected to raise a record $300 billion this year and already have raised $167 billion, according to Private Equity Intelligence. The most recent deal from the private-equity world was the $10 billion purchase of the chip unit of Philips Electronics NV.

Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. and Silver Lake Partners won an auction for that tech concern late last week. The deal will be financed by Goldman Sachs Capital Partners, Vista Equity Partners, Deutsche Bank and Credit Suisse.

Automotive retailing software and service firm Reynolds & Reynolds Co. (REY : 38.77 , -0.17 , -0.4%) rounded out the news. David Barry, private equity for Private Equity Analyst, said the rash of private-equity deals comes after the firms have raised funds well into the tens of billions of dollars.

"They're deploying them and taking advantage of companies that are up for sale in a somewhat favorable financing market," he said. "Firms have raised some very sizable funds and are able to go after companies they wouldn't have been able to go after in the past."

Get the Latest MarketWatch News >>

TRADING CENTER

The Independent Spirit. TD AMERITRADE

$9.99

S&F MidCap 40™ and MidCap SPDR™ are trademarks of The McGraw-Hill Companies, Inc., licensed for use by State Street Global Markets, LLC.

MidCap Spiders ETF is a UIT distributed by ALPS Distributors, Inc. An investor should consider investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of the investment company carefully before investing. For a prospectus, with this and other information, please call 1-866-477-7825. ©2006 State Street Corporation

Learn about MidCap Spiders™ >>

MUTUAL FUNDS & ETFS

Print E-mail Disable live quotes RSS Del.icio.us Digg it RSS

E-mail Print Del.icio.us RSS

Get Quote: Find symbol Search: Advanced search

Capital One® cards. Earn miles or cash back.

E-mail Print Del.icio.us RSS

Search:

Capital Watch RSS

RSS

Print E-mail Disable live quotes RSS Del.icio.us Digg it RSS

E-mail Print Del.icio.us RSS

Get Quote: Find symbol Search: Advanced search

Capital One® cards. Earn miles or cash back.

E-mail Print Del.icio.us Digg it RSS

Private equity shapes Aramark, Reynolds & Reynolds, Aleris deals — MarketWatch

NEW YORK (MarketWatch) -- A recent flood of leveraged buyouts continued Tuesday as management-led groups and their backers, flush with record levels of cash from pension funds and other institutions, splashed out more than $10 billion on three deals.

'Firms have raised some very sizable funds and are able to go after companies they wouldn't have been able to go after in the past,' — David Barry, Private Equity Analyst

Another factor fueling the going-private trend is the ongoing difficulty of being a public company in the face of flat to lower equity prices, as well as regulatory challenges posed by new stock-options-accounting and Sarbanes-Oxley Act requirements.

Traditionally, the deals would likely result in restructuring plans and initial public offerings down the road for the firms, although staying private or selling to another company or private-equity firm are all possible scenarios.

The deals continue even as experts predict that rising interest rates and slowing growth in corporate profits could put a damper on any private or selling to another company or private-equity firm are all possible scenarios.

So far, a reported rival offer for HCA has yet to publicly materialize after reports of bids in the works from rival private-equity firms.

Though the biggest, the fund is not the only one its range. Permira, a London-based private-equity firm, raised $12.8 billion for a new fund on record, the $15.6 billion Blackstone Capital Partners V Fund.

But those funds are nearly double the biggest funds raised historically.

The industry is expected to raise a record $300 billion this year and already have raised $167 billion, according to Private Equity Intelligence. The most recent deal from the private-equity world was the $10 billion purchase of the chip unit of Philips Electronics NV.

Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. and Silver Lake Partners won an auction for that tech concern late last week.

Aramark shares (RMK : 32.37 , -0.21 , -0.6%) fell 25 cents to $32.80 after it agreed to a sweetened acquisition offer from an investor group led by its chief executive officer and financed by GS Capital Partners, COMP Capital Advisors and J.P. Morgan partners, Thomas H. Lee Partners and Warburg Point LLC.

Automotive retailing software and service firm Reynolds & Reynolds Co. (REY : 38.77 , -0.17 , -0.4%) rallied 11% to $30.07 after it agreed Tuesday to go private in a $2.8 billion acquisition with Universal Computer Systems Inc., a supplier of computer systems to auto dealerships. The deal will be financed by Goldman Sachs Capital Partners, Vista Equity Partners, Deutsche Bank and Credit Suisse.

Also, Texas Pacific Group agreed to buy aluminum-recycling firm Aleris International (ARES : 51.99 , -0.86 , -1.6%) for about $1.7 billion in cash, sending shares of the company up 25% to $51.59. The deal flurry comes as private-equity firms cut a big swath through the merger-and-acquisitions market, with several belly-busting deals announced this year, including the $30 billion deal for BAA PLC by a consortium called Airport Development and Kinder Morgan's KMI : 100.89 , +0.05 , +0.0% $22 billion buyout offer, which ranks as the largest management buyout ever.

Also this year, Albertsons' OK's a buyout deal worth about $17.4 billion, Univenio set plans to sell for $12.3 billion, and VNU was snapped up for $9.8 billion.

The only LBO deal in the top seven that hasn't taken place in 2006 was the 1988 buyout of RJR Nabisco for $30 billion, the record holder for many years.

Steve Gelsi is a reporter for MarketWatch in New York.

Steve Gelsi is a reporter for MarketWatch in New York.

Steve Gelsi is a reporter for MarketWatch in New York.